LADIES' COLUMN.

THE SUNSHINE OF HOME.

The real happiness of a home depends upon a determination to lay no undue stress upon little matters, and a resolve to hold one's own irritability in constant check. For it is the sum of trivial affairs that make up the day's account. True home sunshine, if it consistently brightens the features of one member in a family is pretty sure to be reflected in the faces of the rest.

The dear ones at home are more to us than kings and queens, than the mightiest and noblest in the world, and yet we often treat them worse than we treat strangers. With others whom we meet in business or in society we are half unconsciously on our guard. Hasty words are repressed and favors lavished. But those at home usually have the pleasure or the pain of seeing us precisely as we are in the mood of the moment. If our nerves are over strung, or our tempers tried, so far from endeavoring to conceal the fact, we make them feel it. Individually these faults of temper may be small, but so are the locusts that collectively conceal the dew.

Only perfection can bear with imperfection. The better a man becomes the more allowance will he make for the shortcomings of others. In order to have sunlight at home it is not enough negatively to abstain from fault-finding and general peevishness. We should recognize praise as a positive duty. If a thing is done wrongly better sometimes to say nothing about it. Wait until it happens to be done rightly and then give marked praise. The third time the charm of your approbation will produce a much better performance.

If it is possible to "damn with faint praise" how much more damaging must be no praise at all. How much parental goodness and greatness would become actual but for the wet blanket of sullen silence!

THE MOST USELESS EXTRAVAGANCE.—There was once a woman who was the despair of all the other women of her acquaintance. Her house was as pretty as possible, and always in perfect order. She kept it on a very small income, and kept it beautifully. She made all of her own clothes and those of her child. She trimmed hats for herself and sisters. She did fancy work; she painted chairs, thereby sometimes saving as much as seventy-five cents; she taught a class in a mission school; she took lessons in cooking; she belonged to several charitable organizations—and the end of that woman was nervous prostration and a sanitarium. Amid her occupations she had somehow lost sight of the fact that a certain amount of amusement is necessary for the human mind. She had never "had time" for rest or diversion. And her husband, as he paid the bill for medical service possibly reflected how much better, and not only better but cheaper, would the prevention have been than the cure.

ONSOCIABLE.—We envy neither the men nor the women who cannot speak to a fellow-creature out of their own circle or to anybody without the formality of an introduction. There is no computing the amount of profit as well as pleasure such persons lose by hedging themselves in with this stupid fence of fastidiousness. We have always found more of this feeling among persons who were touchy on their social positions than among those self-respecting persons who thought nothing about it. A great deal of intelligence is floating round the world without being labeled, and those men or women who have the good sense to recognize this fact and not act upon it not only are educating themselves, but conferring that pleasure which we are bound by the common ties of humanity to exchange with one another. It seems to us that it is only the snob and pretender who takes a different view of this question.

HOW TO DRY WET SHOES.—When, without overshoes, you have been caught in a heavy rain-storm, perhaps you have known already what to do with your best kid boots, which have been thoroughly wet through, and which, if left to dry in the ordinary way, will be stiff, brittle and unlovely? If not, you will be glad to learn what I heard only recently, from one whose experience is of value.

First, wipe off gently with a soft cloth all surface water and mud; then, while still wet, rub well with kerosene-oil, using for the purpose the furred side of Canton flannel. Set them aside till partially dry, when a second treatment with oil is advisable. They may then be deposited in a conveniently warm place, where they will dry gradually and thoroughly. Before applying French kid-dressing, give them a final rubbing with the flannel, slightly dampened with kerosene, and your boots will be soft and flexible as new kid, and be very little affected by their bath in the rain.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

The old church at St. Foy, at Schlestadt, in Alsace, dating from 1087, has been recently restored, and in the process the workmen came upon a block of mortar that seemed to contain the imprint of a human form. A cast taken, and the emotion was great when it was perceived to be that of a woman. The features, calm, and of a refined expression, are perfectly defined, the breast covered with a knitted woollen vesture of a well-known stitch, and the texture of the hair perfectly moulded. The head is slightly inclined to the right shoulder the neck and throat, with the shoulder-blades standing out in relief, are perfect.

It was thought at first that it might be Hildegard, the noted foundress of St. Foy; but probability points to its being her daughter, the well-beloved Adelaide, as she is called in a charter of 1094. The plague raged in Alsace in the eleventh century. Both Adelaide and her brother Conrad died, hence this evidently hasty and prophylactic inhumation. The lime evidently filtered through the sand and hardened on the body, which left the mould that it has given us in microscopic detail, the features of the girl who eight hundred years ago was hurriedly, and doubtless with many tears, laid in her resting-place. It is not the work of art, says Canon Dacheux, but of nature itself. The expression of a real being is there. We have before us the form and features of a woman of the eleventh century, perhaps more perfectly preserved than any of those which are preserved at the museum at Pompeii.

With Ely's Cream Balm a child can be treated without pain and with perfect safety. It cures catarrh, hay fever and colds in the head. It is easily applied into the nostrils and gives immediate relief. Price 50 cents.

SLIP 'TWIXT THE CUP AND THE LIP.—"There's many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip" is a very old saying, and was first uttered to the King of Samos, an island in the Grecian Archipelago. This king, Ancaeus by name, planted a vineyard, and treated the slaves who cultivated it so badly that one of them told him he would never live to taste the wine made from it. When the wine was ready, and a cup of it poured out for the king, he sent for the slave who had prophesied his death, and asked him what he thought of his prophecy now. The slave replied, "There's many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip;" and, just as he had spoken the words, Ancaeus received warning that a wild boar had broken into his vineyard, and was ruining it. Putting down the wine untasted, he rushed out to attack the boar, and was killed.

Men of all professions and trades, ministers, lawyers, merchants and mechanics unite in endorsing Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup the old reliable cure for all bronchial and pulmonary troubles as the best household remedy in the market.

MARY MAGDALENE'S GRAVE.—Fifteen thousand pilgrims annually visit St. Baume, in Provence, not far from Marseilles, where Mary Magdalene is said to have spent the last thirty years of her life.

The legend runs that Mary Magdalene came from Judea in a small boat with Lazarus, Martha, the two Marys and Salome, bringing with them the body of St. Anne, the head of St. James the Less and a few wee bones of the innocent, massacred by King Herod. But from early ages this story has been disputed, and the Abbe Duschene, one of the most erudite writers on the early Christian saints and martyrs, considers that the relics of Mary Magdalene were probably sent from Constantinople about the seventh century. A Greek breviary, however, speaks of the saint as having died at Ephesus.

Swearing at a horse never stops his balking. He who sows wild oats is not apt to reap tame ones.

A scolding wife is just as beautiful to look upon as a swearing husband.

The man who has no confidence in womanhood is utterly unworthy of the confidence of womanhood.

Hatred always injures the one who harbors it far more than it does the one against whom it is directed.

If you will honestly try to mend your own faults you will have little time to find fault with other people.

The hornet, like the gossip, would not be such a bad thing to have about if it wasn't for the sting in its tale.

It won't do any good to pray for the South Sea Islander as long as you won't speak to the man who lives in the next house.

Now, Tommy, you must remember that it is more blessed to give than to receive. Yes, I know, mamma, said Tommy. But I ain't selfish.

Catarrh in the head is undoubtedly a disease of the blood, and as such only a reliable blood purifier can effect a perfect and permanent cure. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier, and it has cured many very severe cases of catarrh. Catarrh oftentimes leads to consumption. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla before it is too late.

Hood's Pills do not purge, pain or gripe, but act promptly, easily and efficiently. 25 cts.
